MAINTENANCE

If the lanai sliding door is left closed for couple weeks it may get stuck because the rubber strip releases some kind of sticking substance. It would need someone with a strong arm to re-open again. One possible preventive maintenance is to use “Xylene” and “Silicone Spray” over the rubber.

Getting the lanai sliding door off the track is another possible problem that could happen. Make sure every time you open the door you use both hands to prevent the door to smash against the rubber stopper and getting off track.
